The work consisted of interpretation of compiled extensive USGS and other geochemical data, indicating a strong northeasterly trending anomaly providing providing a good target for diamond drilling proposed from COR 37 and 39 consisting of primarily down holes. Work also included making minor improvements to existing assess roads, removing boulders, rocks and improving creek crossings. June 2013 grab sampling consisting of loose quartz material was carried out on the westerly portion of COR 28 . Three of these samples were assayed by Chris Christopherson Inc of Smelterville Idaho. Approximately 8 days were spent on such work under the direction of Peter Laczay Professional Engineer, intermittently between October 5, 2012 to August 27, 2013.

SUBSCRIBED and sworn before me on this 4th day of November, 2013.
